United Way Opens LIVE UNITED Network

United Way of Metropolitan Chicago held a community celebration at Shields Middle School on March 21st for its inaugural LIVE UNITED Network. Pictured are Peter Auffant, principal of Shields Middle School; Stacey Steward, U.S. President of United Way Worldwide; Patrick Broshan, Executive Director of BPNC; Olivia Torres, Parent Mentor at Shields Middle School; Wendy DuBoe, President of United Way of Metropolitan Chicago; Tim Maloney, President of Bank of America; Cook County Commissioner Jesus Garcia and Richard Jones, Senior Vice President of Community Investment at UWMC.

United Way of Metropolitan Chicago is unveiling its new social services model that integrates education, income and health resources within a community to achieve maximum impact so kids stay on track for graduation, people have jobs and families access quality health care.

Called LIVE UNITED Neighborhood Network, the model concentrates resources for children and parents around a physical hub, often at a school, bringing more programs and services to address the socioeconomic challenges which communities are facing.

United Way is investing in Brighton Park to increase the availability and access to education, income and health services to help residents and the community reach its goals. UWMC will work in collaboration with its lead partner, Brighton Park Neighborhood Council, which will operate social service hubs within Burroughs Elementary, Shields Middle School and Davis Elementary providing after-school academic programs, tax assistance, health services and more.

The parent mentor program will have parents inside the three schools to provide assistance to teachers and students while earning a stipend. For income resources, individuals and families have access to free assistance filing their federal income tax.

The health promoters program will ensure healthy food options are available, parents are educated on healthy eating and exercise, and students have ample opportunity for physical activity.

Educational services include after-school programs such as tutoring and mentoring, as well as school-based counseling for students and their families.

"When children and families have the support services they need in the areas of education, income and health, a community can thrive and tackle the issues it is facing," said Dr. Richard Jones, senior vice president of community investment at United Way.

"The LIVE UNITED Neighborhood Network provides enhanced access to support services by maximizing the effectiveness of our strategic partnerships with corporations, government and civic leaders, volunteers and other nonprofit organizations to create practical solutions to our communities' most pressing issues."

Civic Meeting In Vittum Park

State Launches Reading Program

Lt. Gov. Sheila Simon, Secretary of State and State Librarian Jesse White and the Illinois Reading Council have formally launched Illinois Reads, the first statewide literacy program spanning all generations.

Classrooms, public and school libraries, community groups, and community bookstores throughout the state will feature the titles of 35 books in six separate age groupings until Family Reading Night on Nov. 21st.

These books range from read-to books for infants to read-aloud books for home-bound seniors and everything in between. There are several Spanish-language titles and Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics related books.

The Illinois Reads website (www.illinois-reads.org) will serve as the focal point for the campaign with virtual community conversations, webinars, author interviews, book reviews, book trailers, and art work. Visitors will also find the website's marketplace has lanyards, license plate frames, tote bags, tumblers, and t-shirts available for purchase.

Book Club For Young Children

Children, kindergarten through second graders and their parents are invited to join the Chicago Public Library's new Hop Into Reading; New Reader Book Club, through May 24th. Parents will read with their younger children, track the minutes they read and return a complicated "frog log" to the children's librarian at their neighborhood branch library.

Parents should remember that reading at least 20 minutes every day helps building a children's reading success.

Families who return completed logs before May 24th will be entered into a raffle to win a new reader library of books.

For more information, call (312) 747-4780.

Metra Offers Free Tickets

Metra welcomes passengers with an offer of two free tickets to any destination served by one of the nation's largest commuter rail networks. The "Take a test drive in on of our cars" campaign will underscore the time, money and hassle that commuters can save by riding the rails.

Metra Chairman Brad O'Hallaron pointed out that Metra is not only a great option for suburban commuters but also city residents who need to travel to the suburbs.

The campaign invites Chicago area residents to take a test drive on Metra. To encourage more people to do that, each week for 14 weeks starting March 4th, 500 special tickets good for two rides anywhere on the system will be given away.

For information on how to obtain free tickets, visit www.metrarail.com.

Preckwinkle Visits DeLaSalle

De La Salle Institute recently welcomed Cook County Board President Toni Preckwinkle to its Lourdes Hall Campus for Young Women as part of its "Principal for a Day" program. She toured the Lourdes Hall Campus, visited several classrooms and participated in a question-and-answer session with students from Robert Klebes' Advanced Placement American Politics class. As a token of appreciation, Preckwinkle was given a De La Salle blanket. Cook County Board President Toni Preckwinkle joined students Briana Martinez and Jessicas DeStefano in visiting the classroom of math teacher Marissa DeHoyos.

Accreditation For Chgo. Zoo Society

The ArbNet Arboretum Accreditation Program and Morton Arboretum, announce that the Chicago Zoological Society, which manages Brookfield Zoo, has been awarded a Level II Accreditation. By achieving particular standards of professional practices, the Chicago Zoological Society is now recognized as an accredited arboretum in The Morton Register of Arboreta.

At Brookfield Zoo, the Chicago Zoological Society has launched efforts to connect urban families with nature and wildlife and to train informal educators on ways to integrate nature and science-based learning opportunities into their curricula. The zoo offers a walking map that identifies its majestic trees across the 216-acre park.
