New Organizations On Campus

By Dr. R. Pletsch

If you have a good relationship with a college student -- by this I mean that you can talk and listen without getting upset -- many of these students will tell a different story than you may understand from just listening to TV and the selective press reports. You may be surprised to hear the names of groups FIRE, Turning Point and Blexit. These are a few of the groups I've heard about and what they stand for. It is easy to look them up on the inter-net. In short, FIRE stands for Foundation for Individual Rights and Expression. Turning Point is a conservative organization that calls for all to have freedom of speech in public places like universities. Blexit is an organization that schooling.

Turning Point is the largest of these groups claiming a network of over 600,000 student activists in over 3,000 campuses. Blexit states in their literature that they have over 8,000 members. One thing to consider when thinking about these numbers is that according to the polling company, Morning Consult, in 2017 47% of students self-iden-tified as left=wing and their 2022 figure indi-cates the percentage is

Most people are nei-ther far left or far right and can understand and disagree with many their own age. That's okay. They will find out that they have more in com-mon with what they might think is the other side. There are probably many more organizations like these. I know there are some that are ethnically connected or culturally active, but in the long run most of us parents have sent our children to universities to help them become productive, employable citizens.

Next GenStock Car At Science Museum

Photo provided by Museum of Science and Industry

Following the inaugural 2023 NASCAR Chicago Street Race Weekend, the Museum of Science and Industry unveiled a new exhibit featuring a Next Gen stock car transformed into a captivating mural by local artists. Designed and applied by artists from Paint the City, the car's artwork features iconic elements from Chicago's visual landscape and celebrates the legacy of auto racing in the city. The exhibit is now viewable in the Museum's Entry Hall and free for the public.

The mural, painted prominently on the sides, hood and back of the car, was completed during the Bud Billiken Parade on Aug. 12th.

The exhibit also explores the unique build of the Next Gen race car, which was developed by NASCAR in collaboration with the brightest engineering minds in racing. The design of the car has given drivers greater control while putting an emphasis on race strategies, team personnel and setups.

Earlier this week, the Museum of Science and Industry's team maneuvered the engine-less stock car into the Museum by carefully steering it down several levels of MSI's garage. The team manually pushed it into its new home in the Museum's Entry Hall, where it is now viewable to MSI visitors and the public.

Cook County Receives Bond Rating Upgrade

Cook County Board President Toni Preckwinkle applauded Moody's Investors Service upgrading Cook County's bond rating from A2 to A1. This marks the second ratings upgrade in

"We are incredibly proud of Moody's Investors Service's decision to upgrade Cook County's bond rating. This step shows that we are on the right track and our efforts to create long-term fiscal stability are being recognized," said President Preckwinkle. "Today's recognition is proof of concept that local governments can both invest in our communities and remain responsible stewards of our residents' tax dollars.'

Moody's noted the upgrade to A1 reflects the County's accumulation of sound reserves and considers pension reform legislation recently signed by Governor JB Pritzker. Improved financial operations have been driven by a willingness and ability to raise revenue, robust growth in sales tax receipts, operational improvements and an influx of federal aid.

T. PRECKWINKLE

Fitch Ratings last month revised Cook County's outlook from stable to positive also noting the County's work to increase reserves, financial management efforts and the importance of new pension reforms.
This followed a ratings upgrade by Fitch in November 2021.

Cook County continues to receive investment grade ratings from all the major rating agencies, which in turns allows the County to get lower borrowing rates on its bonds.

Addax Birth At Brookfield Zoo

A male addax calf with his mother, 4-year-old Ivy. The African antelope is critically endangered in its native Africa due to uncontrolled hunting for their impressive spiraling horns, meat, and hide and disturbance to its habitat for oil exploration.

On Aug. 8th, guests who were lucky to be visiting the antelopes' out-door habitats on the northwest side of Brookfield Zoo were able to witness the birth of a 15-pound male addax calf.
This is the third addax born at the Zoo in just over a year. The species is at serious risk of becoming ortingt with estimates. ing extinct with estimates of less than 100 individuals of the endangered African antelope remaining in the wild.

This is the first calf for the mother, nearly 4-year-old Ivy, and the fifth for the 9-year-old sire, Ish-nala. Brookfield Zoo, which was the first zoo in the United States to have an addax birth in 1941, has had more than 140 births of this species since 1935. The pairing of Ivy and Ishnala was based on a recommendation from the Association of Zoos and Aquariums' Species Survival Plan. Each plan manages the breeding of a species to maintain a healthy and self-sustaining population that is diverse and demographically stable. Currently, there are more addax in zoos than in the wild with more than 160 individuals being cared for in 22 facil-

The addax, a nomadic desert-living ungulate, or hoofed mammal, were once found throughout northern Africa, but is now known to only exist in Chad, Mauritania, and Niger. Threats to the population include uncon-trolled hunting for their impressive spiraling horns, meat, and hide and disturbance to its habitat for oil exploration.

The addax is also known as white or screwhorn antelope for its white coat and impressive spiraling and twisted horns that range from 2½ to $3\frac{1}{2}$ feet in length. It is a true desert-adapted antelope—the only one of its genus (species group). Addax are able to get water from the plants they eat. Additionally, they have broad flat hooves that keep them from sinking in the desert

Those interested in helping care for the addax at Brookfield Zoo can con-tribute to the Animal Adoption program. For Adoption program.
