Remember The Greatest Generation

By Dr. R. Pletsch The Greatest Generation lived through the Depression, won WWII, built the US infrastructure, and lived through more problems successfully than any generation. Most of us are glad that someone else in our families worked through that mess. Belief in the USA, trust in God, and helping their neighbors helped the nation through these times.

One of the reasons people are looking back at these is that many fail to see the ability or willingness of many of today's population to successfully handle extraordinary problems. This week is the 80th anniversary of D-Day. It is hard to realize just how many people were affected. We hope that our present people will rise to the occasion if needed.

Think on the morning of June 5, 1944 paratroopers each carrying 80 pounds of equipment jumped into the dark into Fortress Europe. The only light was that of guns and cannons being shot at them. Ships were loaded to bring thousands of allies on to the beaches of Normandy. Many, of course, did not make it and they knew it but they came.

At

Americans died on Omaha Beach alone. "Saving Private Ryan" shows this action well and shows the American Cemetery in Normandy where many ended up. I was touched to view it in 1999 and noted that American planes flew by, tipped their wings as a salute for those who did not make it. Final records show that 4,572 were known to die at Normandy, about 2,500 of these were Americans, including 30 sets of brothers that died in the action. Eventually, about 2 million military were brought ashore. If you talk with any survivors, most thought they would not get home.

These men and women fighting the Nazis got orders after Germany surrendered to go to Australia for the invasion of Japan. But, as we know, Truman dropped the bomb and these got to come home to start families and continue their lives. These stats were in an article in The National Review. Being the largest invasion of the war, there are thousands of stories available if you care to read them. If your family has been here for any length of time, most of them have relatives who served, died or were wounded.

Community Kayaking At Bubbly Creek

The South Branch Park Advisory Council will present free community kayaking along Bubbly Creek in Park 571, 2754 S. Eleanor st. on Mondays from 3 to 7 p.m. through September. Urban Rivers and partners have been reintro-ducing native habitat to this historic Chicago waterway. This program is targeted at the communities directly surrounding Bubbly Creek (Pilsen, Bridgeport, Chinatown and McKinley Park). Children under 10 vears old must share a kayak with parent or guardian. Participants must sign a waiver. Each shift runs for an hour. Reserve a spot at urbanriv.org/events. If kayaking isn't your thing, Shedd Aquarium will be running land-based activities centered around nature, science and stewardship. These activities are open to everyone and do not require a reservation.

Mayor Brandon Johnson released the Plow the Sidewalks Pilot Program: Report of Recommendations to guide City departments in developing solutions for removing snow and ice from sidewalks. The report, constructed by a crossdepartmental working group convened with guidance from community stakeholders, offers recommendations and direction for the design and implementation of a pilot program.

The report recommends the City clear the sidewalks of snow and ice, when at least two inches of snow accumulates in a 24-hour period, in four 1.5 square mile pilot zones across the city on the South, Southwest, West, and North Sides of Chicago.

The report recommends the Chicago Department of Transportation serve as the managing department for the contractor-operated pilot with support from the Department of Streets and Sanitation.

Piping Plover Nest At Montrose Beach

Photo provided by the Chicago Park District The Chicago Park District announce the presence of a new egg on the protected area at Montrose Beach Dunes along the shoreline, near the Monty and Rose Wildlife Habitat. The egg is the product of the recent pair bond between nativeborn Piping Plover Imani, who hatched at Montrose in 2021, and Searocket, one of the 5-week-old captive-reared chicks that were released into the wild at Montrose in July 2023.

In a successful scenario, the chicks would return to Montrose Beach Dunes to nest. Documented migration suggests that captive-reared chicks are more likely to return to their release beach the following spring. The experiment worked, and Chicago is awaiting the arrival of a new chick within a month. The Chicago Park District will monitor the fenced area near their nest to ward off and deter Piping plovers had disappeared from Illinois beaches around 1955. After population numbers started increasing, they were next seen nesting in Illinois sixty years later in 2015. In 2019, Montrose Beach fledged chicks again.

Recovery Program For Mexican Wolves

Photo provided by Brookfield Zoo Chicago Dr. Lily Parkinson, a clinical veterinarian at Brookfield Zoo Chicago, examines a Mexican wolf pup born at the Zoo on April 27. This pup and six of its siblings were recently flown to New Mexico and placed with wild Mexican wolf packs as part of the Mexican Wolf Recovery Program. Fostering zoo-born pups in wild dens has been a successful part of the Program to help increase the species' population in the wild.

Seven Mexican wolf pups born at Brookfield Zoo Chicago on April 27th were placed into two wild Mexican wolf dens in New Mexico on May 7th and 8th as part of the Recovery Program. The robust multi-agency conservation effort of fostering zooborn pups in wild dens has been a successful strategy that continues to bolster the subspecies' population in the southwest United States — Arizona and New Mexico, as well as in Mexico. At 10 days old, the pups—six males and one female—were fed and kept warm by two animal care specialists and a veterinary technician from Brookfield Zoo Chicago during their flight to New Mexico. Air transportation was provided cour-tesy of LightHawk Conservation Flying, a nonprofit organization that partners pilots with organizations to help transfer endangered species to new homes.

Upon arrival, members of the Mexican Wolf Interagency Field Team stealthily covered the pups in the scent of the similarly aged wild pups already in the den to ensure they all smelled the same. Before being placed back in the den, all the pups were swabbed for DNA and given studbook numbers. The biologists then monitored the radiocollared mothers to verify that each one returned to her den and successfully accepted the zoo-born pups as her own. The proven process is known as fostering—transferring zoo-born wolf pups into the dens of wild packs to improve the genetic diversity of the wild population.

Two additional female pups born in the litter are remaining at Brookfield Zoo Chicago. The pups are still in a den with their mother, but guests will be able to see them in the coming weeks at the Regenstein Wolf Woods habitat along with their 5-vear-old parents. Vivilette and 11-year-old Amigo, as well as Ahote. their older brother born in 2023.

The Mexican wolf is the rarest and most genetically distinct sub-species of gray wolf in North America. Approximately 4,000 individuals once lived in their historic range, which included central and northern Mexico and the southwestern United States.
