Advanced Placement While Home Schooling

BY: DR. R. PLETSCH

The Homeschooling Networks are working hard to keep up with public demand. Most important is that many of them are accredited and the credits are accepted in many univeraccepted in many universities and workplaces. There are K-12 online programs that are free to public school students. There are also programs that are specifically designed to be incorporated into the Catholic or other religious curriculum.

There are those people that look "down their nose" at these classes, nose" at these classes, but with so many finan-cial problems in the school districts and the method of schooling, looked at more seriously these programs are making an effort to compete with advanced placement classes offered in many of the big schools. So some of these schools are now offering something similar. In fact, Holy Apostles College offers a program that allows the student to earn an Associate's Degree upon high school graduation. Universities like Penn State and the University of Maryland are known to accept transfer credits from these exceptionally motivated students.

The programs are, of course, what you put into them. The use of the internet make these classes greatly improved since I took an at-home class from the University of Tennessee in 1970. The success of the schools that we see a lot of on TV like Phoenix and the University of Southern New Hampshire are driving all schools to compete for students. After all, the baby boom is over. There is competition for good students. These classes help you work at your own pace and keep your

The possibility of earning two years of college credit while still in High School is a great advantage for those going on for further education. First, it's less expensive than a campus, you don't have to pay room and board. For any of our people reading that have gone to college, if you come in to college as a Junior, not a Freshman, you get to register much earlier and more likely to get the classes you need.

These courses are not for everyone. But I thought this information would allow you to consider it as another possibility. The best way to start is to do an internet search. There are more programs out there than you probably imagine with a wide range of cost.

Retrofit Chicago Energy Challenge

BRIGHTON PARK AND McKINLEY PARK LIFE

Mayor Rahm Emanuel announced that twelve additional buildings have joined the Retrofit Chicago Energy Challenge, expanding the program to 62 buildings and 43 million square feet making it one of the largest voluntary efficiency programs in the coutnry. Participants are generating more than $6.4 million in annual savings through a commitment to improve whole-building energy efficiency by at least 20 percent within five years. Emanuel has committed to expanding the total number of Energy Challenge building participants to 80 by mid-2017.

Through 2015, particapants reduced weathernormalized energy use by 11.7 percent, an improvement from the previous year's 7 percent reduction. This includes 90 million kilowatt-hours saved per year and represents 70,000 metric tons in avoided greenhouse gas emissions - equivalent to removing 14,000 cars from the road.

Travel Tips On Zika Virus

Visiting friends and family in areas with Zika virus requires taking special health precautions because individuals may stay longer, be in places with fewer protections against mosquitoes or be in familiar places where individuals may not take as many precautions to stay healthy.

Zika virus is primarily spread to people through the bite of an infected mosquito. Follow these bites: Cover exposed skin by wearing long-sleeved shirts and long pants. Use insect repellents that are registered with the Environmental Protection and contain DEET, picaridin, IR3535, oil of lemon eucalyptus or para-menthane-diol. Stay and sleep in screened-in and air-conditioned rooms whenever possible. Sleep under a mosquito bed net.
