Check Both Sides

By Dr. R. Pletsch

This article is often written in an effort to help the readers understand our condition in this time in history. I try not to be one sided, but I also make the effort to mention things I have researched and are not necessarily in what most consider our common knowledge.

In the last few years, some have been accused of trying to control the flow of knowledge. Often the press has been charged with withholding stories and some have been accused of lying about stories and withholding things that do not meet their political agen-da. Many people have strong opinions about this.

Social media has also been charged with censoring articles that their bosses do not like. I won't help the efforts of these people by being specific, but if you watch social media, newspapers and TV reports it can make you wonder about many things. Now with more and more articles and books are challenging what some consider the facts as we know them, and only believe what they hear first. Our history is full of first. Our history is full of these things. As we progress, especially now with an election year coming up, and people becoming more attuned to the Freedom of Information Act in which common citizens can get documents. original Many of the articles you have read or heard about are different from the first time you heard the story about the subject because someone used their due diligence and of the Freedom Information Act.

An issue that is beginning to get vast scrutiny is the pandemic. What some people consider lies that were told to the public for the past couple Ic for the past couple years. There are numer-ous reports of lies and coverups -- do we really know the truth? It might be out there, but there are many conflicting stories. You must look at articles and their reason for being printed. I recently viewed an excellent interview of Dr. Rand Paul by former Governor Mike Huckabee. This fine Huckabee. This fine interview was about the new book "Fauci and Deception". This book is well researched, complete with footnotes. You can look them up and make up your own mind. It may help you with your decisions for your family. This is not an endorsement, but it seems to be an excellent source for you to help make up your own mind.

CPS Promotes Computer Science

Chicago Public Schools celebrated Computer Science Education Week, from incorporating new technology into curriculum and preparing students for the careers of tomorrow.

CPS is the first school district in the country to make Computer Science a graduation requirement.

Amazon has donated educational robots to 149 CPS elementary schools, most recently at Edwards Elementary in Archer Heights. Pre-k through second grade classrooms are given "Bee-Bots" programmable floor robots that teach students basic coding skills. Older elementary school students received tiny computers called Micro Bits to teach them how hardware and software work together to help them become proficient programmers.

Exposing students to computer science concepts at an early age provides the foundation to take advanced courses during high school, including AP Computer Science Principles.

24 high schools earned the AP Computer Science Female Diversity Award from the College Board for achieving high representation in AP Computer Science courses including Curie Metro-politan and Mansueto.
